The Process

Choosing the content creator

Content creators are selected from our extensive community of world-renowned subject matter experts. As experts in their field, they have passed the certification exam that they will create content for, which enables them to write questions that resemble those found on the official exam in terms of level of difficulty, style, and skill group. In this way, the MeasureUp Practice Test recreates an authentic exam experience.

Quality Standards

Every question written is sent to the MeasureUp editorial team for approval. The team of highly experienced editors guarantee that all questions are written in the specific style of the vendor in question, that they are a true reflection of the questions found on the official exam, and that the explanations are clear and extensive enough for our users to learn from. This process regularly requires a period of communication between the writer and editor, culminating in quality content with the purpose of helping students to learn, evaluate their knowledge, and pass the exam.

Final Version

After editorial review, each question is sent to another subject matter expert, who acts as a technical reviewer, validating and guaranteeing the technical accuracy of each question. Once the editors are convinced that the question is technically accurate and is a true reflection of those found on the official exam, there are two rounds of quality control - editorial and technical - to make sure that the questions are consistent and score correctly.
